TEXTO A

The Benefits of Listening to Your Favorite Music

It has long been suggested that music can help lower pain perception without medication. Emerging research has also found that music might change our experience of certain types of discomfort. Importantly, the type of music you're listening to may play a role. According to the journal Frontiers in Pain Research, listening to our favorite music can reduce pain intensity, and, specifically, bittersweet music can help reduce the general unpleasantness of pain.

In the body, hypoalgesia is a decreased sensitivity to pain. It happens when pain stimuli are interrupted between their origin point, like a knee or foot, and where they are recognized as pain by the conscious mind, primarily in the brain's thalamus, and cortex. To investigate this response, researchers placed heat on the left arms of 63 healthy subjects. The sensation was similar to the feeling of a hot cup of coffee on the skin.

The participants were played three different tracks: they either listened to their favorite songs, relaxing music selected for them by the researchers, or silence. The participants were asked to rate the intensity, and unpleasantness of the pain.

When silence was played, the participants rated the pain as less intense by about four points on a 100-point scale. They also said the pain was less unpleasant by about nine points when listening to their preferred songs, compared with silence. The relaxing music that was selected for them did not produce this effect, as in zero points in the scale.

TEXTO B

Jane Goodall Transformed our Understanding of Chimpanzees

Jane Goodall, whose research on chimpanzees in Tanzania revolutionised our understanding of these primates, challenged some deep-set ideas of what it means to be human. She turned from scientist to activist, campaigning for a kinder attitude towards animals and the environment.

During her first years in the field, Goodall named an individual David Greybeard, who showed her a side to chimpanzees nobody had ever documented before. She watched David from a distance as he chewed a freshly killed pig – an observation that opposed the theory that chimps were strict vegetarians.

Some days later, Goodall witnessed David making and using a tool to feed on ants. After seeing this behaviour repeatedly, Goodall went to Professor Leakey, her colleague, with the discovery. At that point, most people believed humans were the only species capable of making and using tools. In response, Leakey declared: “Now we must redefine ‘tool’, redefine ‘man’, or accept chimpanzees as humans.”

Despite Leakey’s excitement over Goodall’s findings, not everyone was ready to embrace them. The unfair treatment Goodall received from her male colleagues hardly encouraged her to conduct research. She was criticised for giving her study-animals names and personalities. “I didn’t give them personalities, I only described their personalities,” she explains. As for Goodall’s discovery that chimps used tools: “Some scientists actually said I must have taught them,” she laughs. “That would have been fabulous if I could have done that.”

She simply knew that she was right and her critics were wrong. “My mother always taught us that if people don’t agree with you, it is important to listen to them. But if you’ve listened to them carefully and you still think that you’re right, then you must have the courage to defend your convictions.”

INGLÉS
CRITERIOS ESPECÍFICOS DE CORRECCIÓN Y CALIFICACIÓN

El ejercicio incluirá cinco preguntas, pudiendo obtenerse por la suma de todas ellas una puntuación máxima de 10 puntos. Junto a cada pregunta se especifica la puntuación máxima otorgada. La valoración y los objetivos de cada una de estas preguntas son los siguientes:

Pregunta 1: Hasta 2 puntos. Se trata de medir exclusivamente la comprensión lectora. El estudiante deberá decidir si dos frases que se le presentan son verdaderas o falsas, copiando a continuación únicamente el fragmento del texto que justifica su elección. Se otorgará 1 punto por cada apartado. Se calificará con 0 puntos la opción elegida que no vaya justificada.

Pregunta 2: Hasta 2 puntos. Se pretende comprobar dos destrezas: la comprensión lectora y la expresión escrita, mediante la formulación de dos preguntas abiertas que el estudiante deberá contestar basándose en la información del texto, pero utilizando sus propias palabras en la respuesta. Cada una de las preguntas valdrá 1 punto, asignándose 0,5 puntos a la comprensión de la pregunta y del texto, y 0,5 a la corrección gramatical y ortográfica de la respuesta.

Pregunta 3: Hasta 1 punto. Esta pregunta trata de medir el dominio del vocabulario en el aspecto de la comprensión. El estudiante demostrará esta capacidad localizando en el párrafo que se le indica un sinónimo, adecuado al contexto, de cuatro palabras o definiciones. Se adjudicará 0,25 por cada apartado.

Pregunta 4: Hasta 2 puntos. Con esta pregunta se pretende comprobar los conocimientos gramaticales del estudiante, en sus aspectos morfológicos y/o sintácticos. Se presentarán oraciones con huecos que el estudiante deberá completar o llenar. También podrán presentarse oraciones para ser transformadas u otro tipo de ítem. Se adjudicará 0,25 a cada “hueco en blanco” y en el caso de las transformaciones o ítems de otro tipo se concederá 0,5 con carácter unitario.

Pregunta 5: Hasta 3 puntos. Se trata de una redacción, de 150 a 200 palabras, en la que el estudiante podrá demostrar su capacidad para expresarse libremente en inglés. Se propondrá una única opción y se otorgarán 1,5 puntos por el buen dominio de la lengua – léxico, estructura sintáctica, etc. – y 1,5 por la madurez en la expresión de las ideas – organización, coherencia y creatividad. Para corregir esta redacción se utilizará la siguiente rúbrica de evaluación:

Puntuación: de 0 – 3

Cada apartado se valorará entre 0 y 0,5, según se ajuste a lo que figura en el descriptor de “Excelente” (con la nota máxima de 0,5) o de “Deficiente” (con la nota mínima de 0).
